Physician leadership at all levels emphasized at December meeting

The importance of local, state and national physician leadership – and the valuable links between the three levels – was a recurring theme at the final MSSC membership meeting of the year on Dec. 8.

The evening wasn't limited to podiums and Powerpoints, though, as attendees had time to mingle and debate bids for the annual "Wine with a Purpose" silent auction benefiting Project Access. By the time bidding closed, the fund-raiser featuring physician-donated vintages had raised $3,895.

During the evening, Dr. Estephan Zayat publicly assumed the 2016 president's office from Dr. Paul Huser, trading a gift for a gavel and telling Dr. Huser: "Thank you for your strategic thinking and continuing legacy."

Dr. Jay Gilbaugh, president of the Kansas Medical Society and 2006 MSSC president, provided an update on the state of state medicine. He spoke of Kansas' favorable legal environment, how the Kansas Health Information Network is a model for other states and of issues likely to arise in Topeka, such as KanCare expansion and the role and regulation of nurse practitioners. Telemedicine will continue to grow, he said, and illustrated the need to handle it thoughtfully with the observation that an offer to "Skype with a physician for $49" wasn't any more reassuring than one to "paint any car for $99."

Dr. David Barbe, a Missouri family practitioner and immediate past president of the American Medical Association's Board of Trustees, brought a national perspective on medicine while recalling his training in Wichita. Depending on whether he's standing in Kansas or Missouri, Dr. Barbe said, his three years here were either the "best of our lives" or "the only dark blot" on his career.

Fellowship teaches Dr. Joudi a great deal

For Dr. Fadi Joudi, being the Kansas Medical Society's Jimmie A. Gleason Fellow is an experience that has increased both his knowledge of the issues and his appreciation for physician-leaders.

Dr. Joudi, secretary of the MSSC, became the Fellow in May 2015. The fellowship, which honors the Topeka OB/GYN who founded KaMMCO, is designed to cultivate young physician leaders in Kansas.

Dr. Joudi, a urologist, said the duties include going to quarterly KMS board meetings as well as to the American Medical Association's annual, interim and advocacy meetings.

January President's Message

by Estephan Zayat, MD —

I am humbled and privileged to serve as president of the MSSC. Many members of this organization have taught and mentored me over the past 25 years: initially as a resident and later as a practicing physician. For that I am eternally grateful and welcome the opportunity to give back by serving.

Great things are happening at the MSSC. We have a terrific team under the leadership of Jon Rosell and the guidance of a stellar board of directors. Your input is very important for the well being of our patients, the medical profession and ultimately you. I invite you to get involved.

The MSSC also provides an opportunity to network with your colleagues and share common concerns and solutions. The regular social events are a welcome time to do all that in a very informal and enjoyable manner. Get involved!

As I begin my year as president, I find guidance in the Medical Society's mission statement: The mission of the Medical Society of Sedgwick County is to promote the highest standards of ethical medical practice, medical education, research, and community health.

As it should, the work of the Medical Society and its affiliates embody that statement.

The Central Plains Health Care Partnership and Project Access coordinate physician-donated care to the vulnerable in our community. Similarly, HealthICT is working to improve overall community health by lowering rates of obesity, diabetes, heart disease and stroke through a multipronged approach.

Other affiliates directly deliver resources that physicians need to operate their practices professionally and efficiently. ProviDRs Care is the state's only doctor-owned PPO, while the Wichita Health Information Exchange helps physicians smoothly access patient information and Medical Provider Resources handles all-important credentialing and other practice support services.

Among our physician-led efforts are ones involving sports concussions, EMS, maternal infant health and, soon, children's health. Some of these efforts are local and within the medical community. Others require a statewide or even a national outlook.

This year, many issues we care about as physicians and as residents of the community will arise in the Legislature and on the campaign trail. The annual legislative session is under way, and our legislative committee is already at work to ensure that the voice of the physician is heard in Topeka and that doctors influence events instead of just react to them.

It is an election year as well, providing opportunities for us to inform and support legislative candidates. The Medical Society's political action committee, SedgPAC, delivers the resources those efforts require. Supporting it is another way to get involved!

The efforts and initiatives described above are a healthy list, but you might be asking what can the MSSC do for you and your practice. I would like to hear your thoughts and questions along those lines. Please send me a line or two on how we can serve you better.

With the vision and hard work of generations of physicians, the MSSC is healthy, vibrant and well positioned for the times ahead. Our future is bright. You are an important part of it.

Get involved!

EMS committee alters pediatric routing

The MSSC EMS Physicians Advisory Committee recently approved changes in routing that make Wesley Medical Center the preferred destination for nearly all pediatric patients.

The decision affects all pediatric patients but those suffering from both burns and blunt or penetrating trauma. In those cases, EMS crews in the field will decide whether Wesley or the Via Christi Burn Center is the best choice.

Since 1980, as designated by state law, the MSSC advisory committee has established EMS protocols for Sedgwick County. The protocols are followed by 16 EMS systems in the region.

The committee, chaired by Dr. John McMaster, left routing protocols for adults unchanged.

He's found the national meetings engaging, as he's had the chance to contribute to discussion on the issues. At the meetings, the Kansas delegation divvies up the sessions to attend, then delegates report back on what they've learned. "When you read those resolutions, you get to learn the process and get involved," he said. "It's been an eye-opening experience for me."

"The main thing is getting to learn health care policy and learn what are the challenges facing the doctors and knowing what the AMA and the KMS are doing to advocate for doctors," he said. "For example, on a national level I got to learn about ICD-10 and the role the AMA played in having a one-year grace period."

He's also seen the time and commitment it takes to be a physician-leader. Married to pediatric gastroenterologist Lana Hattar and the father of two young boys, he knows well the difficulty of making room into an already busy schedule.

"They are taking time away from family and work for the betterment of medicine," he said of leaders. "Somebody has to do this, and you can be passive and say someone is doing it for me. But the truth is you have to be involved in helping to shape your destiny."

New faces at the office

Receptionist Robbin Smith is the new face of the Medical Society and its affiliates. She came aboard in early December, after 13 years with Child & Family Eyecare, a West Wichita optometric practice.

Craig Sangals joined ProviDRs

Care in late November as director of contracting and network development, responsible for the providers relations department and for all provider contracting. Sangals has 13 years of experience with large insurers, including United HealthCare, Preferred Health Systems and Coventry Healthcare. He's looking forward to again be working closely with providers.

Kuhlmann named Meek award winner

Zachary Kuhlmann, DO, is this year's recipient of the Dr. Joe Meek Young Physician Leadership Award.

Dr. Kuhlmann, who has practiced with Associates in Women's Health since 2007, is medical director at Wesley Women's Clinic and associate program director of the OB/ GYN Residency at KU School of Medicine-Wichita. He also serves on the MPR Board of Directors and is an active leader on the MSSC Safe Sleep Task Force. The award recognizes emerging leaders among doctors 40 or younger and seeks to develop future MSSC leaders. It honors former KUSM-W dean Dr. Joe Meek and his career promoting organized medicine and medical education. Kuhlmann will attend MSSC board meetings and take part in other leadership development activities throughout the year.

Wichita State honors one of its own: Donna Sweet

Dr. Donna Sweet, 2014 MSSC president, earned yet another honor for a career dedicated to treating AIDS patients: an honorary doctorate from her alma mater, Wichita State.

Dr. Sweet received the doctorate – the first honorary degree granted by WSU since 1988 – and also was bestowed the university's President's Medal.

As part of the honors, she spoke at WSU's fall graduation in early December. "It is simple truth but one often difficult to accept: we all need help sometime," she told graduates. "Being the person to provide help to others, no matter how small, is one of the greatest experiences in life."

Opioid use is focus of MSSC initiative

The Medical Society is developing an initiative to provide education, resources and new protocol recommendations regarding opioid use by patients suffering from pain.

Drawing on local expertise, the initiative will be designed to improve the level of care as well as increase physicians' comfort level on handling the issue. The MSSC plans to offer a free CME program on opioids in coming months.

Noting 16,000 deaths in 2013 and a 300 percent increase in opioid prescriptions since 1999, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention has released draft guidelines for prescribing opioids, a proposal that has generated extensive discussion. Public comments period on the guidelines closed this month. In addition, an American Medical Association task force has been working to reduce the use of prescription opioids.

Matching grant funds dental care for Project Access patients

An anonymous donor offered $12,500 to fund dental care for Project Access patients – if the Central Plains Health Care Partnership's board members personally matched the amount.

Board members proved up to the challenge at their December meeting, together donating the $12,500 that makes a total of $25,000 available, said Mick Cayless, Central Plains' development director. "The board members are stepping up with their treasure to support the program," he said.

Currently, 13 dentists and oral surgeons volunteer their services to Project Access, and the grant will offset costs such as dentures, replacement teeth and other care. Often, dental conditions must be remedied before Project Access providers can safely perform surgery or deliver other needed care. For the donor, "it's an opportunity for them to see the good they're doing be matched," Cayless said.

Saying that the AMA's mission was much more than just advocacy, Dr. Barbe described three of the organization's focus areas: improving physicians' professional satisfaction and the sustainability of their practices, changing how medical education is delivered, and improving health outcomes through programs targeting diabetes and cardiovascular disease. One diabetes reduction partnership he mentioned, with the YMCA, has a local component involving MSSC affiliate HealthICT.

Dr. Barbe drew parallels between the roles of the MSSC, KMS and AMA. For doctors at each level, "we are the convener. ... We have to become more united to be an effective voice," and that requires coordination. "It doesn't work if we are not aligned."
